LETTERS AND TOMATOES

BETTER WAIT THAN NEVER

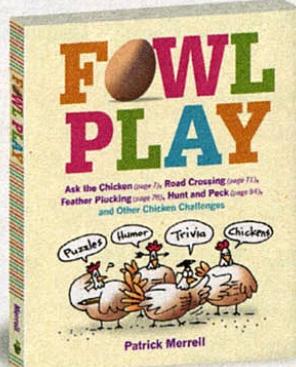

I am an avid reader of MAD magazine. I have read almost every single one. I also read my dad's old ones. But now I am quite annoyed that it takes four months to publish each issue. So why, MAD magazine, do you take so darn long to make one? Do you want us to get smart and stop reading? But I still love the magazine, the last issue was hilarious! So the choice is yours — do you want me reading a book?

Sam Clark, Greenwood Village, CO

Sam-Wow! — Reading a book is a great idea — we suggest starting with Bo Confidential (written by the editors of MAD and published by those loveable palookas over at Running Press). It's available wherever books are sold — so head out today, quit your belly-aching and keep giving us your money! —Ed.

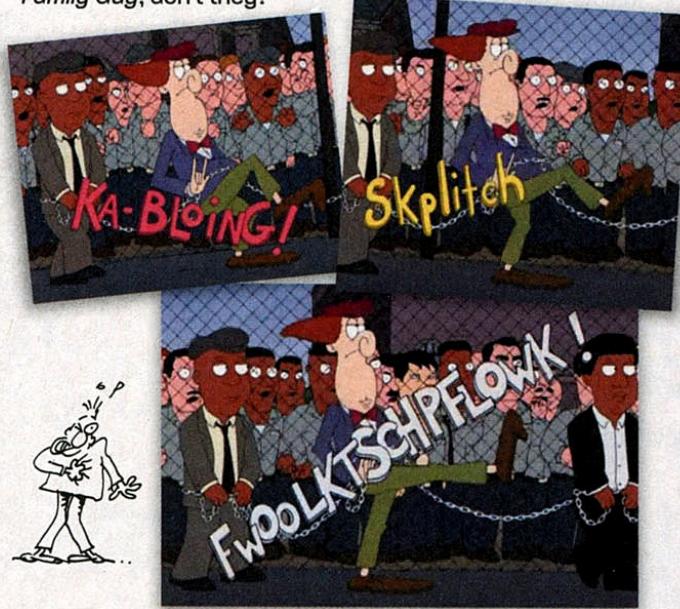

MAD Reader Alert 1

MAD artist and writer Patrick Merrell just released Fowl Play, a book of chicken-themed puzzles, jokes, games and trivia. What's this mean to you, you wonder? Geez, it's always about you, isn't it? Well, if your letter was published this issue, you get a copy! It's published by Storey Publishing and it's on sale now!

MAD ON FAMILY GUY!

A recent episode of Family Guy featured a character in the style of legendary MAD artist Don Martin — complete with trademark sound effects! We'd say the reference was a pretty bizarre non-sequitur...but those make up 99% of Family Guy, don't they?

NOT FIT FOR MAD OR BEAST

You have a new fan — my dog! First, he smiled when I rubbed his belly with the edge of the magazine. Then, while I was looking at "Mismatch.com," he started scratching at the magazine. You know what they say, like son, like dog. Calvin Sharp, Southport, CT

Sharp Attack — Your dog loved the belly rub and then scratched at the magazine? That's so weird! When we showed him the latest issue, MAD artist and writer John Caldwell had the exact same reaction! You know what they say, like dog, like Caldwell! —Ed.

ANTIQUES FREAKSHOW

Will you please tell me how much my beloved lamby lamp is worth? His precious face has been by my bed watching me sleep since before I can remember. Lamby was especially valuable in college because girls would take one look into his glossy eyes at my bedside and beg me to turn out the light. I can't seem to put a price on my lamby, can you?

Johnny Mauger, Wooster, OH

Johnny Cakes — Thanks for sending in your photo. As usual, when we receive a question regarding collectibles, knick knacks or tchotchkes, we send it right off to our own memorabilia maven, Hans Brickface. Here's what he had to say about your lamp:

"Oh my sweet shining stars! This work is clearly the product of a skilled and sinister artisan. This was your bedside lamp as a young man? Did you get even a WINK of sleep knowing that this innocently-creepy beast of death was watching over you? My god, man, just look at his eyes — they're turned away as if he was checking that the coast was clear before bludgeoning you in your sleep. I don't know what it is worth, but I would pay ANY price to never have to lay eyes on it again!"

ENVELOPE OF THE MONTH

Casablanca. Zebras. Swirl ice cream. Some things are great in black and white! And you can add this month's envelope of the month from Olga S. of Los Angeles, California to that list! Also, nuns. We love nuns.

LETTERS AND TOMATOES

A CASE OF WRITE AND WRONG

Me and my friends at school all read MAD and think that it is the best magazine ever. But now they are all starting to think that MAD's "Letters and Tomatoes" is fake and MAD makes the letters up. Please help me prove them wrong.

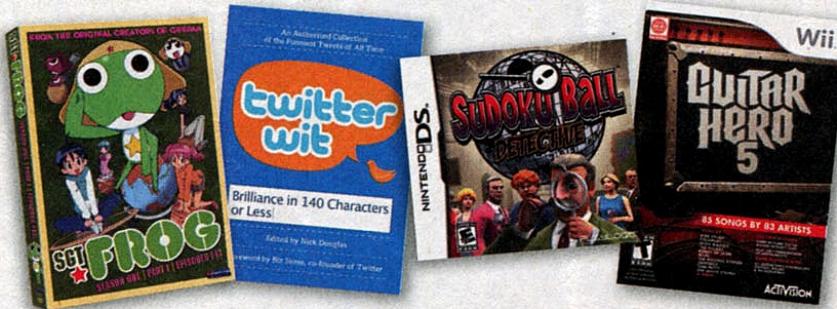

Ryan Taber, Patterson, NY

Taber Tots — If we WERE making up the letters, don't you think we'd come up with something more interesting than yours? The good news is, you're right — the letters are all real! The bad news, however, is that you're the smartest one in your group of friends. And that's just kinda sad. —Ed.

MAD Reader Alert 2

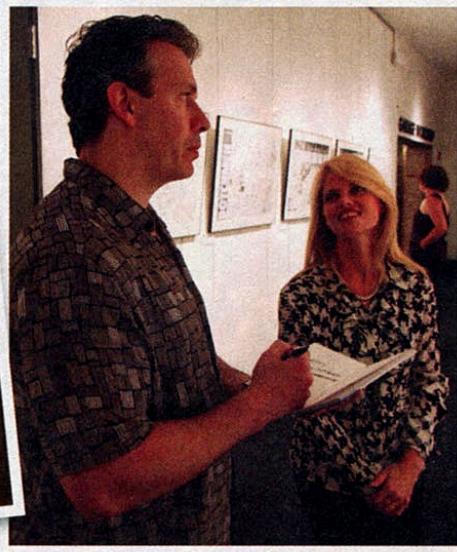

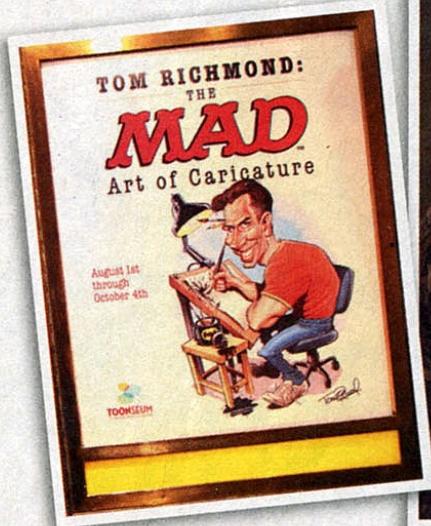

You lucky so-and-so's! If your letter was printed, you'll receive some of the items in this treasure trove of cool stuff! You'll get Sudoku Ball-Detective (for either PC or DS) — a revolutionary new take on popular Sudoku puzzle games — solve murder mysteries and Sudoku puzzles at the same time — courtesy of our amigos at Playlogic! You'll also be getting Sgt. Frog Season 1, Part 1 on DVD, courtesy of our pally-pals at FUNimation Entertainment! And you'll receive a copy of Guitar Hero 5 for the Wii, courtesy of our hard-rocking buds at Activision. And, because reading is fundamental, you'll also get Twitter Wit, edited by Nick Douglas, courtesy of our comrades at It Books. If you missed out, don't sweat it, they're all on sale now!

BLIGHT AT THE MUSEUM

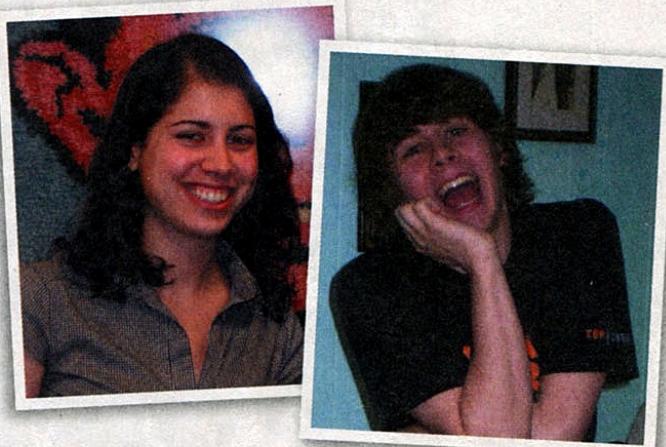

MAD artist Tom Richmond was recently honored by the ToonSeum at the Children's Museum of Pittsburgh with the exhibit "Tom Richmond: The MAD Art of Caricature." Congrats, Tom! And our condolences on your shirt!

HOORAY FOR FREE LABOR!

Another summer has come and gone — and with it, our delightful summer interns, Sarah Chalek and Matt Lassen! What does the future hold for these bright-eyed young hopefuls? Embarrassment at their association with this magazine, we'd imagine...

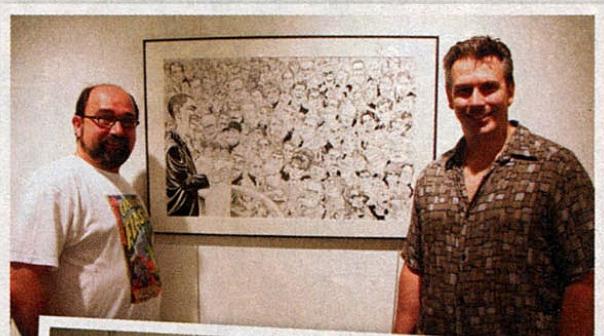

TYPO NEGATIVE

I was reading MAD #501. On page 8 (where the Lobster talks about subscribing to MAD) in the last paragraph it says, "That's why I don the lobster suit and risk the scalding hot kettle and the drawn butter sauce." Well, I got so excited that I found a typo in MAD. I thought "don" was supposed to be "done." Until my parents crushed my dreams and said that "don" was a word. So I looked it up and it said "don" is to put on an article of clothing. Keep writing, MAD!

Alex Smith, Gresham, OR

Smitty — If you're happy, then we've don our job! —Ed.

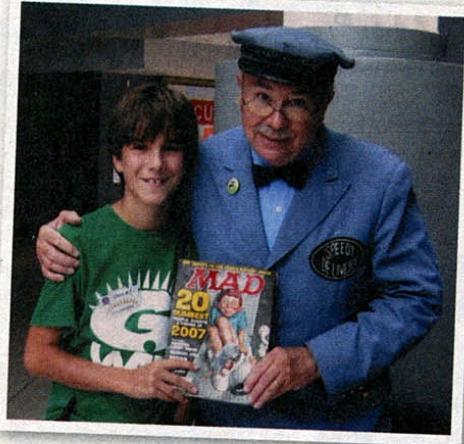

MAD Celebrity Snaps

I got this picture with Mr. McFeely from Mister Roger's Neighborhood. I got it while working as a volunteer at a local science museum. The work can get a little tedious after telling a kid for the 500th time how to work an exhibit, so I often bring a MAD magazine to corrupt the children and help the time fly by. Can I have my free three-year subscription?

Daniel Fetigan,
Sarasota, FL

Boba Fett —
There's something very unsettling
about this picture.
"McFeely," indeed!
We'll give you the three-year sub,
but let's never speak of this again! —Ed.

WHEN THE SHIRT HITS THE FANS

If you saw Funny People (and judging from the box office numbers, you probably didn't!), then you also saw Seth Rogen wearing a custom-made MAD shirt! Thanks for the plug, guys!

BLIGHT AT THE MUSEUM 2

Last issue we told you that The Ojai Valley Museum in Ojai, California was honoring MAD artist and writer Sergio Aragones with a retrospective of his work. The exhibit included a recreation of Sergio's studio and hand-drawn marginals, right on the walls! To all you despicable cads who doubted it was true, here's the photographic proof!

Answer To Last Month's Problem:
"The $50 Bill and the Drinking Straw"

Since the parameters of the puzzle did not state that the bill must remain intact, passing an unfolded fifty through the straw is an easy feat. The bill is simply shredded with a cheese grater and carefully poured through the straw. A clever, albeit expensive, solution.

THE CANONIZATION OF MICHAEL JACKSON The Kids Stay Out of the Picture

Michael Jackson's personal and professional lives were filled with countless peaks and valleys. He was tremendously talented, but also tremendously f---ed-up. Now, we don't like to speak ill of the dead, but here goes anyway: Jacko was a self-important, over-medicated, emotionally-stunted, borderline pedophile who hadn't recorded a good song in 20 years. There, we said it. Now the grieving can begin.

St. Michael of Neverland,
Son of Joseph, Heavenly Moonwalker

Thou shalt be remembered always as the singer of songs, the dancer of dances — and not as the changer of noses, the dangler of infants, the toucher of children. For thou hast proclaimed thyself the King of Pop — and thou shalt be remembered thusly. May all who forsake you suffer a fate worse than Tito's solo career, for thine life shall be everlasting through the endless reissuing and exploitation of thine earthly works. Amen. Shamon.

CORPORATE BAILOUTS Keeping Bad Companies

In a real capitalist society, when companies fail, they go out of business. But in the U.S. some companies are designated as "too big to fail" and get special treatment. These behemoth institutions are actually allowed to steal money, screw investors, post record losses and still pay out millions of dollars in bonuses to the greedy, incompetent, reckless, white collar, criminal executive scumbags who run them. President Obama was so upset about this that he gave a disapproving speech to Congress before signing off on a multi-billion dollar government bail-out plan. Ain't that America!

JON & KATE PLUS 8 The Parent Crap

It was a charade! It was a sham! It was a rouse! It was season 5 of Jon and Kate Plus 8! This season we learned that when your marriage is crumbling and your family is in danger of falling apart, the best thing to do is to keep those cameras rolling and act like nothing's wrong! To be fair, lots of couples going through a divorce will put on a brave face for the ones they love. It's just that in this case, the loved ones were the network and their sponsors. We hope Jon and Kate made a lot of dough this season — because the cost of 8 child therapists is really going to add up.

HENRY GATES ARRESTED IN OWN HOME Beer & Loathing

An esteemed black professor in need of anger management is arrested by an overzealous white cop for the heinous crime of being in his own home. Not since the OJ trial have racial tensions made for such mind-numbing media melodrama. Obama called the actions of the white cop "stupid," then realized that he was stupid for saying it. So, in a novel attempt to heal the nation's centuries-old racial divide, he invited the hotheaded black professor and the profiling white cop to a "Beer Summit" on the White House lawn. If only the President had thought to turn it into a pay-per-view event, he could have made enough money to pull the nation out of debt!

DICK CHENEY WON'T SHUT UP *Veep Sh*t*

Former Vice President Dick Cheney could be enjoying an idyllic retirement, hunting, killing and gutting his prey in his native Wyoming. Instead, the most secretive Veep in history is now on TV more than Law & Order reruns. Worse, all he talks about is his apparent love of bloodshed, torture and violence: executive assassination squads, his statement that Guantanamo is a "first class program," his defense of waterboarding and "enhanced interrogation techniques." This guy has more blood on his hands than a hemophiliac juggling razor blades. Since he likes being on TV so much, maybe he's even angling for his own series.

ANGRY TOWN HALL MEETINGS Loud to be an American

A baby starts crying in a movie theater. What's the first thing you think? Stop the movie and attend to the baby's needs? No, you just want someone — anyone! — to take the bawling runt away. Now imagine that crying baby — and lots of others — has grown up, but his behavior stayed the same. That's what it was like at town hall meetings this year as birthers, deathers and other right wing morons stopped any intelligent discussions about health care reform. We wish their mommies were there to take the spoiled little bastards out the door — but our guess is that their mommies were already dead, probably because they couldn't afford adequate health care.

CAUGHT WITH HIS WORLDWIDE PANTS DOWN Stupid Human Trysts

Bill Clinton has long been revered as the king of cigar-smoking, smarmy, two-timing weasels — but thanks to David Letterman, he finally has some competition. When a CBS producer tried shaking Dave down for a cool two million bucks to keep quiet about some creepy affairs, Dave ran to the cops and the rest is history — and about six months worth of monologue material for Jay, Conan, Jimmy, Craig and Dave himself. The whole sordid tale stinks worse than the potato salad at Rupert Jee's Hello Deli.

BASEBALL'S ONGOING SCANDAL Urine Trouble Again

The 1950 Phillies are known as baseball's Whiz Kids — and now so are the 105 cheaters whose names were on the "secret" list of players who tested positive for steroids. This year, some high-profile names, such as A-Rod, Big Papi and Manny Ramirez, were leaked to the press, and a stream of bad publicity soon flowed, giving a whole new meaning to the term yellow journalism. The players whipped out their usual piss-poor excuses. We hope MLB quickly puts this scandal behind them because we're officially out of urine puns. Then, they can get back to doing what they do best — crassly merchandising every aspect of America's beloved national pastime.

Commemorate Baseball's Biggest Scandal with The Official MLB Piss Cup Collection

Manny Ramirez

The #1 Sports Collectible!

Alex Rodriguez

These stunning collectibles are painstaking reproductions of the very same piss cups urinated into by baseball's biggest superstars for their failed steroid tests. From Big Mac to Big Papi, the piss cups of all the greatest cheaters are here, ready to be displayed on your bookshelf, mantel or toilet tank.

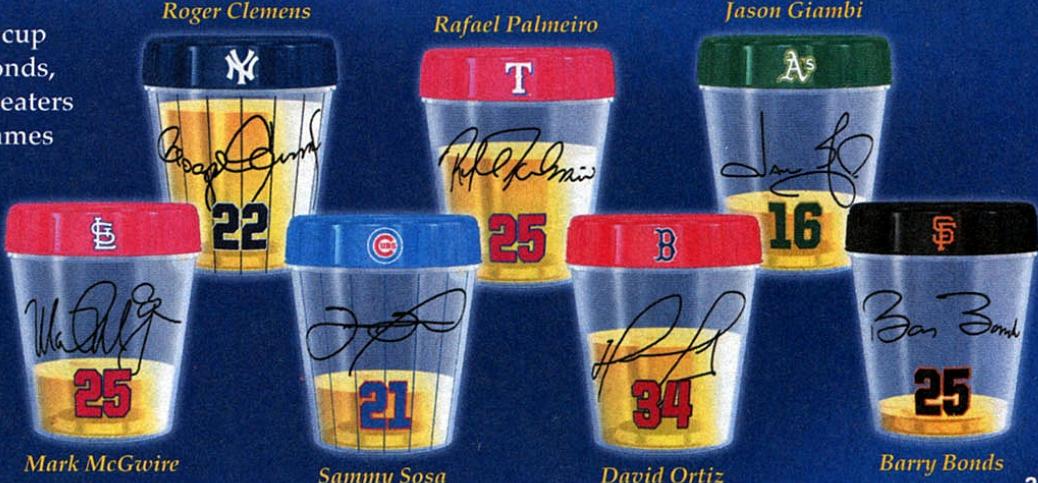

Each piss cup is emblazoned with the player's signature, number and logo of one of the teams he played on when using a banned substance. Order today and we'll start your collection with A-Rod! As a special bonus, the first 1,000 orders will receive a 3 oz. sample of A-Rod's actual urine with a Certificate of Authenticity.

Every month we'll send you a new piss cup of a steroid-tainted player. You'll get Bonds, Clemens, Ramirez, plus all the other cheaters from the "secret" list of users as their names are leaked to the press.

*To get your collection flowing,

THE OCTOMOM The Eerie Birth Canal

They say you can't be too rich or too thin, or if you're Nadya Suleman, "too pregnant." The Octomom was implanted with six fertilized embryos and, well, you know the rest. At first, the public was delighted with the story — but like a dirty diaper, the more we dug into it, the worse it got. First we found out that she'd already had six kids, then that she was a single mom on public assistance. When we learned that she had a weird Angelina Jolie obsession and even had plastic surgery to look like her, we realized that she was just bonkers. We can't imagine what daily life is like for her kids, but we're sure it's nothing to laugh about — just like another famously disturbing family.

BERNIE MADOFF'S PONZI SCHEME The Wrath of Con

How vile a human being is Bernie Madoff? Consider this: Calling him a monstrously hideous, lying, repugnant sh*thole is an insult to monstrously hideous, lying, repugnant sh*tholes. Madoff operated the largest single investor fraud in the history of humanity, bilking clients out of billions of dollars and ruining countless lives. How vile was he? He was sentenced to 150 years in prison. And that was with leniency! We hope that when he gets out in 2159, there's someone waiting for him with a ray gun to shoot him in the face.

12MINNESOTA SENATE RACE Land of a Thousand Recounts

You'd think that eight years after the Bush-Gore election debacle (an election in which we still don't know who actually won) that America would have learned to count votes. Nope. (We'd rather bitch about fraudulent election results in Iran and Afghanistan than deal with our own stupefying incompetence.) It took eight months to declare Al Franken the winner over Norm Coleman in the Minnesota Senate race. That's longer than the baseball season. Longer than it takes to walk from Mexico to Canada. Longer than it will take for the next issue of MAD to come out. Too freakin' long.

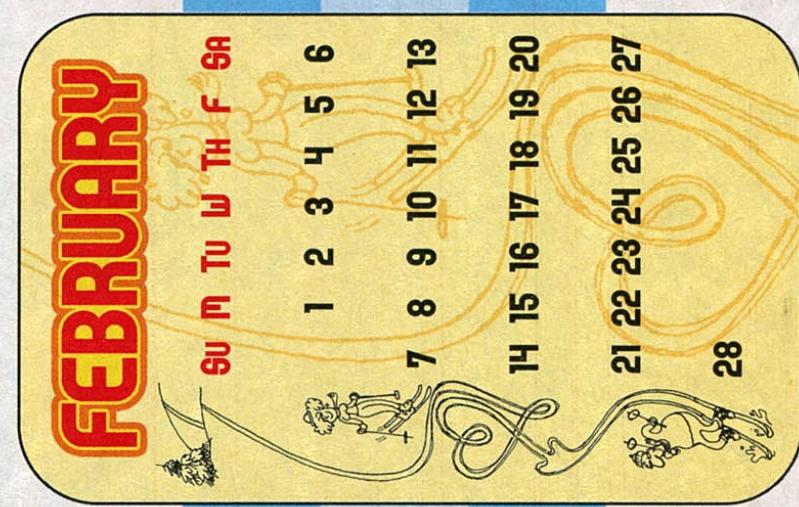

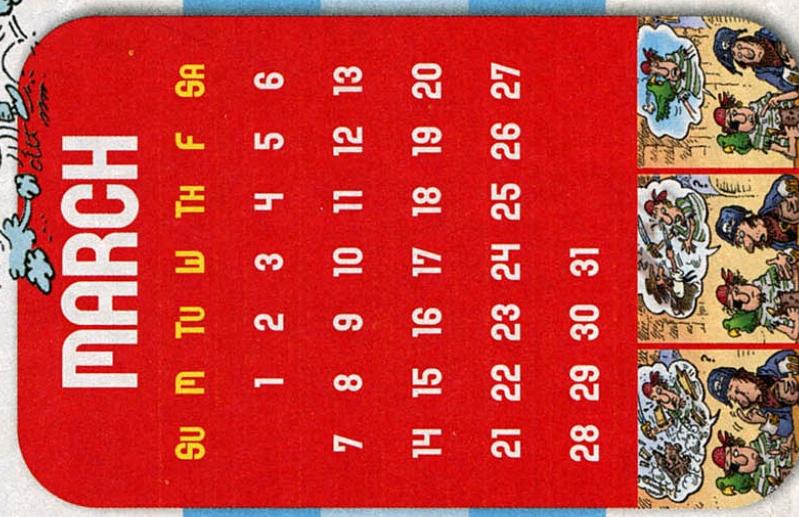

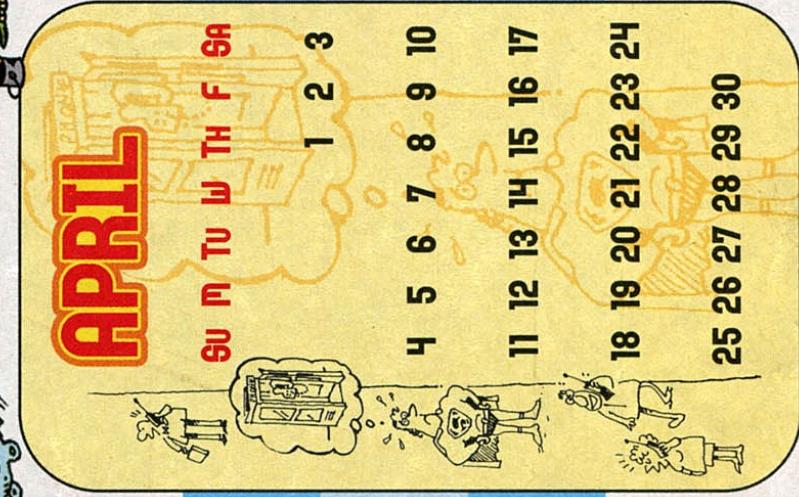

For political candidates with electile dysfunction.
When the time comes to concede defeat, will you be ready?

DEMOCRA-CIALIS IS HERE.

If you've already tried futile legal challenges and angry calls for recounts, yet continue to suffer from an inadequate vote tally, Democra-cialis may be right for you. Losing candidates who have used Democra-cialis have seen a marked reduction in electile dysfunction, leaving their opponents victorious and satisfied.

Senatorial candidates experiencing an election lasting more than four months should seek help to admit that they lost to avoid permanent damage to the nation. (Democra-cialis is not available in Iran and other Middle Eastern countries.)

GLENN BECK Fairly Unbalanced

Glenn Beck is part pundit, part showman, and part misinformed, fear mongering, mentally unstable simp. Consider his appearance on the Fox morning show where he accused President Obama of having a "deep-seeded hatred of white people." He then immediately did a 180 insisting he's "not saying Obama doesn't like white people," and then ended his bizarre diatribe by declaring that Obama is a "racist." Despite this compelling evidence, we don't think Beck is crazy. We think he's a conniving self-promoter who will say anything for his own enrichment, with little regard for the consequences of his incendiary rhetoric. And that is not just dumb, that's dangerous.

CHRIS BROWN ASSAULTS RIHANNA Rhythm & Bruise

Chris Brown has been compared to legendary musicians Michael Jackson and Usher. But the best comparison is to legendary lady-puncher Ike Turner. Brown admittedly beat his girlfriend Rihanna to a bloody mess, but that didn't stop him from looking for scapegoats. He blamed the media for causing the fight, his abusive stepfather for turning him into an abuser, and Oprah for not defending him. (We haven't been watching this season, is she now pro domestic violence?) Sorry Chris, you're not the victim here. In fact, we wouldn't consider you a victim even if someone beat your smug little face into a bloody mess.

15OBAMA'S SENATE SEAT FOR SALE Here Comes the Brib

Chicago has never been known for ethical politicians. So it should come as no surprise that Governor Rod Blagojevich (pronounced Bla-GOYA-vitch — like you're throwing up a bratwurst) got caught trying to sell Barack Obama's vacant Senate seat like that dead huckster Billy Mays tried to sell OxiClean. With black matted hair that makes Donald Trump's doo seem respectable, the dwarf-like chief executive of Illinois was wiretapped and caught red handed. Despite Blago going on a screwball media denial tour, the state senate immediately impeached his sorry ass. In an unrelated event, the Chicago Cubs failed to win the World Series again this year.

ROD BLAGOJEVICH.

He governed Illinois with a grip as firm and despicable as his haircut. When Obama's Senate seat had to be filled — he decided to fill his pockets as well.

KANYE WEST Talk is Creep

We're not Taylor Swift fans — but if we were at the VMAs, we would have clapped politely during her acceptance speech. If we were jerks, we would have booed or twittered something mean while she spoke. That's what separates us from a visionary like Kanye West. Who else would think to rip the mic right out of Swift's hands and tell the world who HE knew should have won? West's most ground-breaking achievements haven't been in music — they've been in the fine art of douche-baggery. So here's a statue just for Kanye — and we promise, no one will interrupt his acceptance speech — because NO ONE deserves it more than him!

CHEATING CELEBS Living Libido Loca

What do Nevada Senator John Ensign, South Carolina Governor Mark Sanford and Louisville basketball coach Rick Pitino all have in common? All three went to the same grammar school? Nope. They're all vegans? Try again. All three of them are lying, two-faced weasels? Bingo! Each of these "Good Christian" men got caught cheating on their wives this year. In the case of Ensign and Sanford they were not only dumb but hypocritical since they had called for Bill Clinton's resignation when he got caught cheating — yet now refuse to resign themselves. As for coach Pitino and his sexual indiscretion, we'll let you insert your own "ball handling" joke here.

ALASKA LOSES ITS GOVERNOR The Flaking of Palin 1,2,3

Sarah Palin claims she enjoys going "rogue." (Apparently "rogue" is the Eskimo word for "stupid.") She lamented that many lame duck governors slack off during their last term — only to up and quit during her first term! She slammed David Letterman for joking about her daughter, and making light of statutory rape, only to counter his joke by insinuating that Letterman himself was a statutory rapist. She challenged the media to stop lying about her...then lied about Obama's health care plan and how he's in favor of "Death Panels" to kill Grandma. We wonder if the Eskimos have a word for "dangerously delusional political hack."

MICHAEL PHELPS SMOKES POT Toke on the Water

During the Olympics, it was widely reported that Michael Phelps consumed 12,000 calories a day. Now we know why: he had the munchies. Phelps was the toast of the country for his record-breaking performance at the 2008 Olympics, but his world came crashing down when a photo surfaced of him taking a hit from a bong at college party. An unprecedented, holier-than-thou overreaction immediately followed and Phelps was labeled a clueless, self-centered athlete who had "let down the kids." Let down "the kids"?!? It was "the kids" who offered him the hit to begin with! Besides, it was from a bong — which, technically, makes it a water sport.

MICHAEL JACKSON'S DOCTOR Premeditated Murder

As Michael Jackson's personal physician making $150,000 a month, you'd think that Conrad Murray was a highly respected doctor. He wasn't. As a cardiologist, you'd think he'd know that you can't perform CPR on a soft surface. He didn't. Since he was administering a potent anesthetic, you'd think we was trained in anesthesiology. Nope. Unfortunately for MJ, Conrad Murray was nothing but a quack, and now that he's likely to be charged with manslaughter, his illustrious faux-medical career is apparently over. Oh well, he can always find work giving lethal injections — in prison.

November 2, 2009

 This morning, in homeroom, Mrs. Coleman was making an announcement about when school will be closed for the holidays. So we started talking about other holidays, and we somehow got to Groundhog Day. Then Martika Bergman, who's an exchange student from Sweden, raised her hand and asked, "What is a groundhog day?" So Mrs. Coleman tried to explain it to her, and Martika asked a lot of questions, like, "How does anyone know if the groundhog actually sees its shadow or not?" But finally, she said she understood: "You Americans believe a rodent controls the weather. In Sweden, we have – how you say? – meteorologists?"

I have to say: When she put it like that, it did sound kind of stupid.

November 5, 2009

 Yesterday, I got home and found two envelopes in the mail, one addressed to me, and one to my folks. Here's the one my parents got:

Here's
the one
I got:

Thou art invited to partake in the ancient Elvish practise of Bar Mitzvah for young master Brian Harris as he is inducted into Manhood in accordance with his Jewish faith, 'pon the 21st of November at Temple Beth-El with merriment in the Room of Ceasar at the Marriott on thoroughfare 1,95.

$50pp

To translate this into English: Brian Harris is having his bar mitzvah. And it will, apparently, be "Lord of the Rings"-themed.

I'm not sure why he invited me – we're not even good friends. He's nice, but he's kinda geeky – like, even by geek standards. Back in elementary school, he'd show up for Halloween in these weird costumes, and get really annoyed when he had to explain that he was dressed as a character from "Babylon 5". By third grade, he started carrying a sign that read, "I am a character from 'Babylon 5'."

But my mom and his mom are good friends, so I guess I have to go. I asked my mom what a bar mitzvah is. She says it marks the day when you become a man. I told her I don't think most men have Hobbit-themed birthday parties. She said not to mention that to Brian.

November 6, 2009

 I saw Brian today. He said he's been working really hard to get ready for his bar mitzvah. I guess, as part of the ceremony, he has to read aloud in Hebrew. He said he's had a hard time learning it, which surprised me, because I remembered that, for the middle school talent show, it took him only about a week to learn how to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" in Elvish.

I asked him if maybe he could just do his reading in Elvish. He said he'd already asked. The rabbi told him no.

November 17, 2009

So, today in school, Chuck came up to me in the hallway and said he had big news: Jimmy DeMarco's parents are out of town this weekend, so he's having a big party at his house. Jimmy DeMarco's a senior, but Chuck's older brother Doug is friends with him, and he said that Chuck could come, which means that I can come. Chuck said everyone at school's going to be there, and it's going to be pretty much the biggest party since Eric Dalton's party four years ago that resulted in his parents sending him to military school.

And then Chuck told me the bad news: It's this Saturday. As in, the day when I've already promised Brian I'd go to his bar mitzvah. I asked my mom if I have to go. She said no, I can skip it. As long as I also want to skip going to everything else I'm invited to for the next six months, because I'll be grounded. I hate it when my mom splits her answers into two sentences like that.

November 19, 2009

So, at lunch today, everyone was talking about Jimmy DeMarco's party. People are saying that his house is huge, and has a pool, and he has an XBox, PS3 and a Wii hooked up to it, and that Rachel Price, who was the captain of the cheerleading team last year, is actually going to come, and bring some of her college friends.

I would've found out more about the party, but I got pulled away from the conversation by Brian, who wanted to know if I'd rather sit at the Treebeard table, or over in the Shire, on Saturday. I asked if there was a table for Orcs, and he just laughed and said, "Yeah, right! Orcs! At my bar mitzvah!"

And then, when he calmed down, he said, "I'll put you in the Shire."

November 20, 2009

Jimmy DeMarco's cousin, who lives in LA, is coming to the party. And people are saying he knows Lauren Conrad, and that she might come too. Meanwhile, Brian tells me that, at his party, there'll be an ice sculpture of Gandalf. So, you know. It's not like I'm missing out or anything.

November 21, 2009

I just got back from Brian's bar mitzvah. It was a little weird at first, because Brian was dressed as Frodo, and the waiters were dressed as elves. But it was also kind of cool — they managed to make the Marriott ballroom look as much like Middle Earth as a Marriott ballroom can look. And there was a DJ, and a magician, and a martial arts display. Plus, there were some cute girls from other schools who Brian had gone to camp with. Oh, and the dessert was a giant cake in the shape of a Balrog, which Brian stabbed with a sword and cut into pieces.

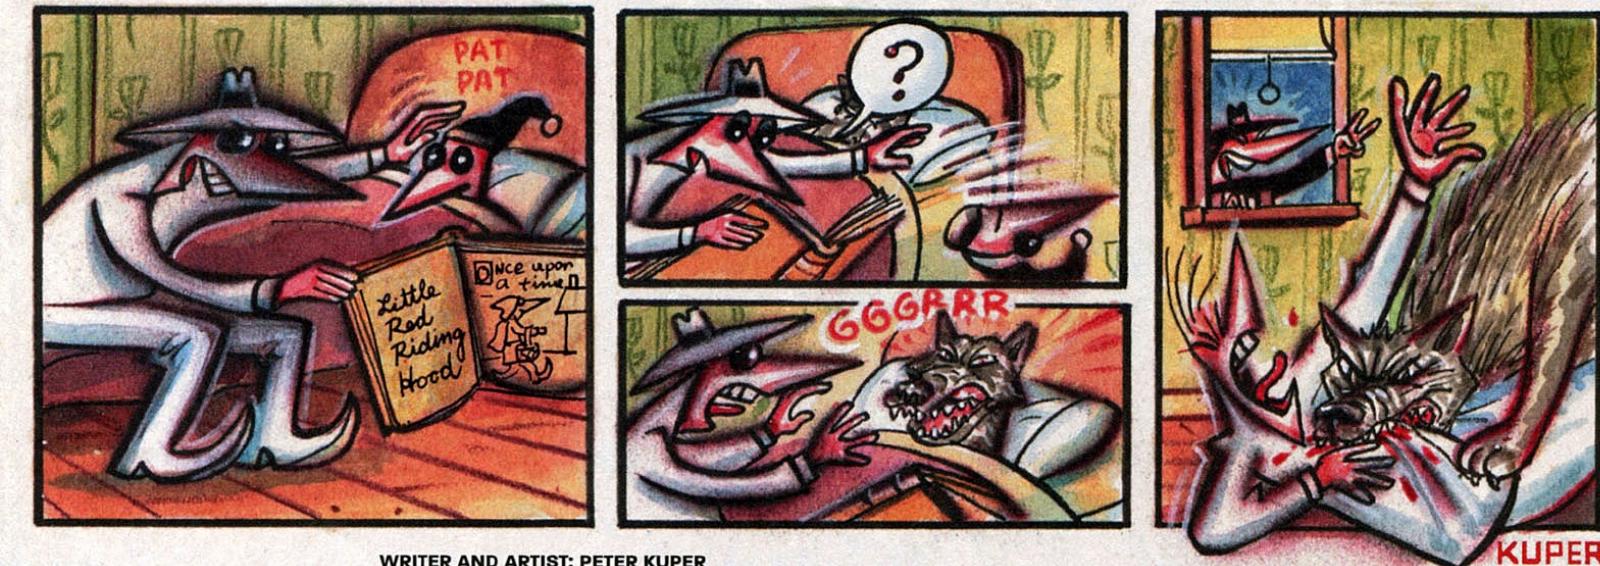

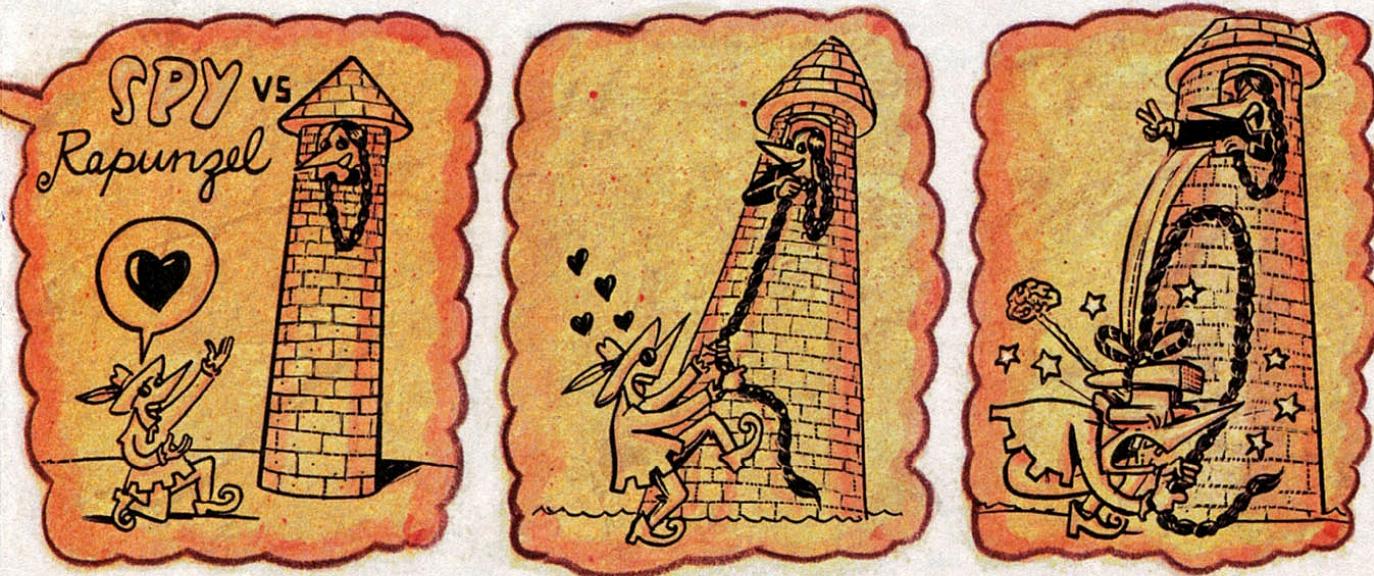

But none of these were the best part. The best part was when I first arrived, and was looking around, and saw Jimmy DeMarco there with his parents. I asked him what he was doing there, and he shrugged and said, "My folks are friends with Brian's folks." And then I said, "No, why aren't you at your party?" and he just laughed and said, "Doug made up the whole party thing as a joke. I thought for sure everyone would figure it out when he said that Lauren Conrad would be there." And that's when I pictured Chuck and everyone else, standing outside Jimmy's house, freezing. And suddenly, Brian's party got a thousand times better.

OPERATION

In the gruesome tradition of Saw and Hostel comes Operation — a shocking film that will buzz you to your very core. When the alcoholic, red-nosed Cavity Sam (Paul Blart: Mall Cop's Kevin James) has his heart broken, he spends a night of violent drinking to ease the pain — but awakes to find himself strapped to a dingy operating table, faced with the horror of surgery by a gang of maniacally giggling, shaky-handed children (Little Miss Sunshine's Abigail Breslin, Two and a Half Men's Angus T. Jones, and Daddy Day Care's Jimmy Bennett)! Can he escape — or will he have his Adam's apple, funny bone and bread basket snatched clean from his body with a rusty pair of tweezers? Directed by Patch Adams' Tom Shadyac.

With the announcement that Universal Pictures would be producing six (six!) movies based on Hasbro board games, it became apparent that Hollywood has scraped clean through the bottom of the barrel and into the soft, moist soil of failure. But if you're one of the snot-slurping cretins who are actually excited for flicks based on Monopoly, Candy Land and Battleship, well, we've got good news — there are more on the way! That's right, roll the dice and move ahead to more...

BOARD GAME-

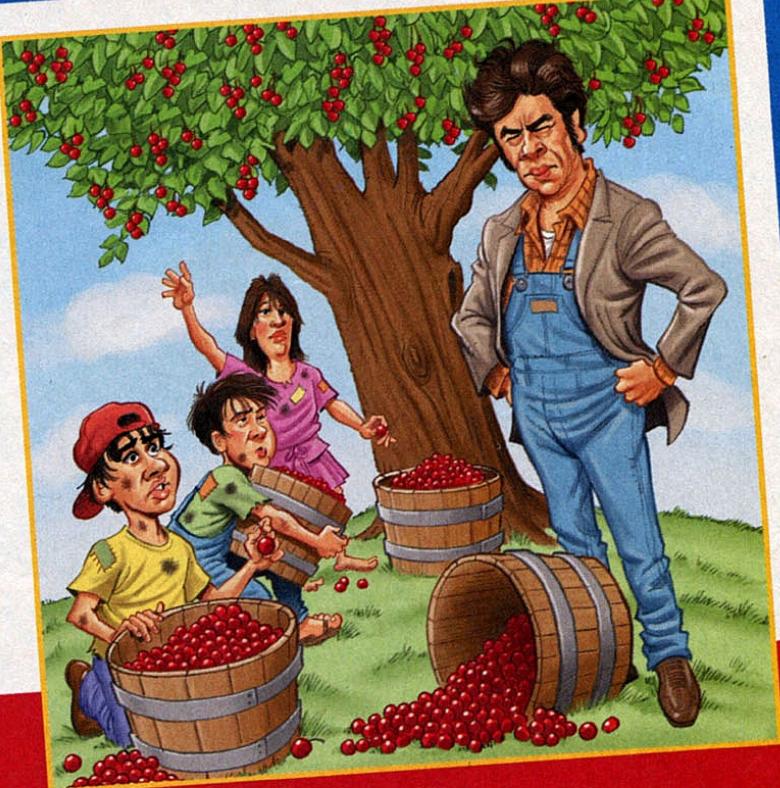

Don't Wake Daddy

A frank exploration of child abuse, Don't Wake Daddy stars Dakota Fanning (Charlotte's Web) as Amber, an 11-year-old whose whiskey-soaked father, Ferris (Mystic River's Kevin Bacon), spends his paltry factory wages on liquor — letting his daughter go hungry each night while he drinks himself to sleep on a tattered La-Z-Boy. When she's sure he's passed out, the desperate Amber must tiptoe into the kitchen for a crust of moldy bread and a cup of sour milk — but if she steps on the cat's tail, rouses the family bird or knocks over a vase, there will be hell to pay. Unflinchingly directed by Kimberly Peirce (Boys Don't Cry), Don't Wake Daddy will leave you starving with desire for a better world.

Hi-Ho Cherry-O

A tragic glimpse into the seamy world of Mexican child labor, young Miguel (stunning newcomer Luis Ramirez) must somehow pick enough fruit from four meager cherry trees to satisfy his domineering field boss, Tito (played with venomous brio by Oscar-winner Benicio Del Toro). Can one downtrodden 6-year-old overcome hungry crows, harvest-wrecking dogs, and Tito's malicious habit of putting the boy's hard-won cherries back onto the tree? Filled with both buckets of heartbreak and the sweet juice of hope, Hi-Ho! Cherry-O possesses an overwhelming bounty of emotion.

BASED MOVIES WE'LL SOON BE SEEING

Trivial Pursuit

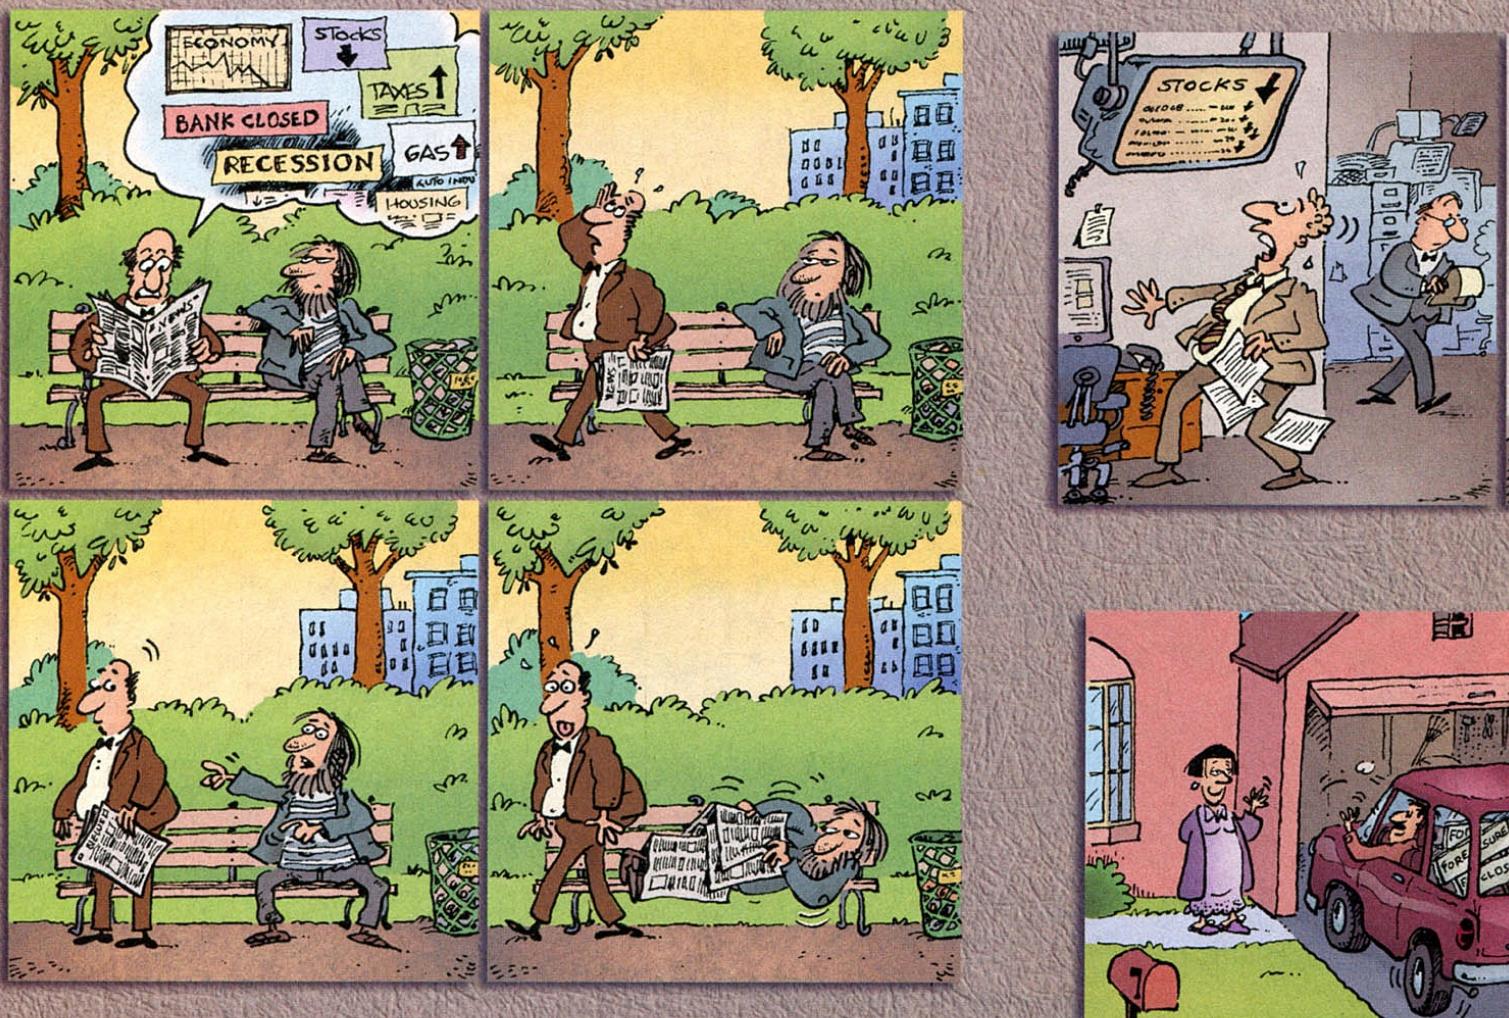

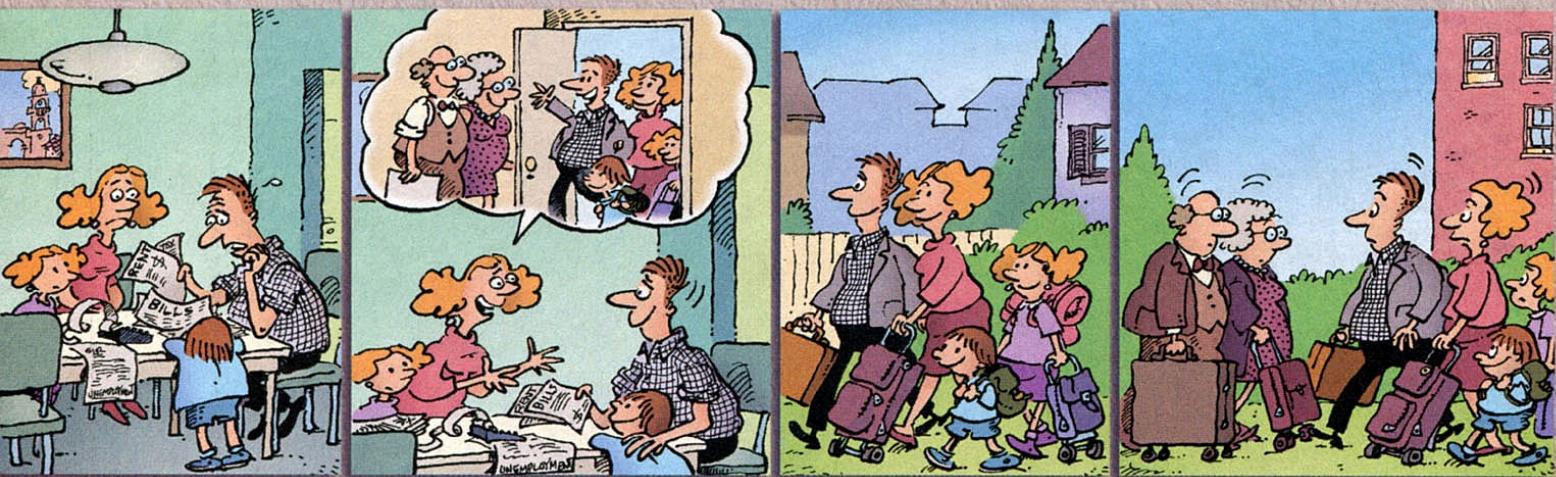

Trivial Pursuit is the hilarious new comedy from Judd Apatow, director of the smash hits Knocked Up and The Forty-Year-Old Virgin. Seth Rogen, James Franco, and Paul Rudd star as three wisecracking misfits who work in a failing pie shop — and to pass the time, try to stump each other with questions about Belgian waffles, Mariah Carey, and the reign of Emperor Hirohito! To make it interesting, they award each other a wedge of pie if they answer correctly about Geography (blueberry), History (lemon meringue), Arts & Literature (apple), Science & Nature (key lime), Sports & Leisure (peach) and Entertainment (pink chiffon). Soon, every pie in the shop is sliced up, and when the owner arrives, the accusations — and the pies — start flying!

What the Difference? Is the Difference Heck

Can you find the 8 idiotic changes we've made to this Twilight: New Moon poster?

New Moon

The Twilight saga

New Moon

The Twilight saga

- 1) Robert Pattinson now has a lush and shaggy mullet.
- 2) Kristen Stewart has an equally lush and shaggy unibrow.
- 3) Taylor Lautner has a giant schnozz.
- 4) There are Christmas ornaments hanging from the tree.
- 5) Lautner has a giant foam finger (perfect for picking that huge honker).
- 6) You can't see it, but they're all wearing Capri pants and Crocs.
- 7) The Count is there — and is officially the scariest vampire in this franchise.
- 8) Pattinson is holding poop on a stick — because that's what mysterious, dreamy loners do, dammit!
